

A black, tapered, multi-segmented mechanical component, likely a telescope or probe, shown against a white background. The component consists of four distinct cylindrical sections of increasing diameter from left to right, connected by thin, slightly recessed rings. The surface appears matte and slightly textured. The component is oriented diagonally, with the narrower end pointing towards the bottom left and the wider end towards the top right.

info@stuermer-maschinen.de

